Travel Vaccines: Know before you go

Planning ahead can be crucial when it comes to traveling over-seas. Visiting another country can put you at risk for diseases that may not normally be found in the United States. Getting vaccinated against certain diseases is one of the most effective things you can do to protect your health abroad. Plan to get the travel vaccines you need at least a month before your trip.

What vaccines do I need before I travel?

- You should be up to date on your routine vaccines
- Depending on your destination, your medical history, your planned activities, and other health concerns you may need other vaccines

Featured Vaccine: Yellow Fever

What is yellow fever:

The yellow fever virus is found in tropical and subtropical areas of Africa and South America. The virus is spread to people by the bite of an infected mosquito. Yellow fever is a very rare cause of illness in U.S. travelers. Symptoms of yellow fever may include fever, aches/pains, and severe liver disease with bleeding and yellowing skin (jaundice).

Prevention:

- Use insect repellent
- Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants
- Stay in well-screened or air-conditioned areas
- Get vaccinated

Why should I get vaccinated?

Yellow fever vaccine can prevent yellow fever. There is no medicine to treat or cure yellow fever.

Severe yellow fever can cause death in 30% to 60% of affected people.

Yellow Fever Vaccine

Yellow fever vaccine is a live vaccine containing weakened, live yellow fever virus. This vaccine has been available for more than 80 years.

- Given as a single shot
- Receive vaccine at least 2 weeks prior to traveling
- One dose provides lifelong protection for most people

Recommended:

- For people aged 9 months or older who are traveling or living in areas at risk (Africa and South America)
- Yellow fever vaccine may be required for entry into certain countries (You will receive a yellow vaccine card to present when entering the country)

Where can I get the yellow fever vaccine?
